CORONAVIRUS ALERT

Like you, we at Blair & Potts are feeling the impact of the coronavirus (Covid 19) on day to day life. While striving to meet the needs of our clients, we remain mindful of the health of our employees and our responsibility to help contain any spread. Therefore, effective immediately, many of us will be working remotely from home, but we will also maintain a small office presence. What this means is that we will continue to work on your matters, but there may be some delays in responding to calls and e-mails. Office visits may also need to be rescheduled.

Relatedly, we anticipate that the IRS will announce an extension of the April 15th filing deadline, which may or may not also extend the payment deadline. We will keep you posted on any such announcement. In the meantime, we are proceeding as if the deadline for both filing and payment is April 15th in which case we will evaluate on a case by case basis whether to request any extension.

Thank you for understanding and patience. We wish you and your families good health in these uncertain times.
